D/Q 49

Records of the Friends' School, Saffron Walden, comprising administrative, financial, admissions, academic and other records, 1701-1955. The catalogue marks which were originally allocated to these records by the school have been incorporated in the attached catalogue.

The Friends' School was first established in Clerkenwell in 1702, moving to Islington in 1788, on to Croydon in 1825 and, finally, to Saffron Walden in 1879.

For printed histories of the school read :

Unbroken Community : The Story of the Friends' School,
Saffron Walden, 1702-1952 by David W. Bolam, 1952 (D/Q 49/I3/a5);
Saffron Walden School : 'A Sketch of Two Hundred Years' a bicentenary publication written by JBC, c.1902 (D/Q 49/I3/a4);
Friends' School : A hundred years at Saffron Walden, 1879-1979
by John C. Woods, 1979 (D/Q 49/I3/a6).

The copyright in this catalogue is vested in the Essex County Council. No part of it may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transmitted, in any form or by any means, without the permission of the County Archivist.

A note on Quaker dating

Quakers referred to the months of the year by number, for example first month was March, second month April and so on to twelfth month February.

At the time when the Friends' School was founded, and like the rest of the country, they recognised the official year as beginning on the 25th day of what was called March. Thus, what today would be 20 February 1720 was to them 20th of the twelfth month 1719. In the records dual dating by old and new style years, as 1719/20, was normally used only for dates between 1 and 24 of the first month [March] where confusion was particularly liable. This system had the advantage that the numbers of the months seven to ten corresponded to the numbers in the Roman names, September and December.

The Quakers observed the reform of the calendar of 1752; but for them this meant a change in the names of the months, as well as in the beginning of the years. 10th month 1751 [December] was followed by first month 1752 [January]. Henceforth months were numbered as in the modern practice for abbreviation 20 3 1752 being 20 third month 1752, or 20 March 1752 to non-Quakers.

In the present catalogue the years pre-1752 dates are shown in dual form where the original uses old style. Months have been shown in the following form 4[6]th (meaning June) with the version used in the record first, and the later equivalent in brackets.

The Committee responsible for the management of the school was known as the School Committee until 1968 when it became the Board of Governors.

The minutes of this committee are in two forms : the rough minutes made during the meetings and the best minutes, ie the fair copies of the wording finally accepted by the committee.

The methods of book-keeping have altered over time and the meanings of the terms 'Cash Book' and 'Journal' have also changed. Richard Hutton's book D/Q 49/A4/a1, [1711] - 1737, contains information about the methods in use during the early eighteenth century, see pp 6-9, as does Bill Book I, D/Q 49/B1/c1, 1715-1719, pp 21.

D/Q 49/D	List of scholars

The rules of government of the school require that the Committee is notified of admissions and withdrawals. These are recorded in the Best Minute Books, D/Q 49/A1/a1-31.

A minute of 13.12.1737, (D/Q 49/A1/a5, 1736-1745, p73) refers to the admission of some non-Friend scholars. However, a later minute of a meeting held 5.4.1738, (D/Q 49/A1/a5, p89) clearly states that no children whose parents are not Friends should be admitted.

The Juvenile Literary Society covered interests much wider than its name suggests. It developed a strong Natural History section and this eventually became a separate society. It was responsible for the care of a museum and a library. The girls had their own separate societies until after the introduction of co-education in 1910, however few of these records have survived.

The Senior Literary and Natural History Societies evolved from the Juvenile Literary Society.
